- Note on accrual of interest on savings accounts
The permanent balance is the amount of money that was constantly in the account during the calendar month.
Variable balance is the total balance on the account.
Interest on the Variable balance is calculated from the next calendar day after the day of receipt of funds until the day preceding their withdrawal from the deposit account. Interest is calculated daily at the end of the business day.
Interest on the Permanent balance is calculated from the next calendar day after the date of receipt of funds on the deposit account for the estimated minimum (permanent) balance of funds during the month. Interest is charged once a month at the end of the last business day of the month at a rate determined as the difference between the interest rates on the Fixed balance and the Variable balance, according to the Tariffs. The basis for calculating interest on the permanent balance is limited, according to the Tariffs.
